

TRC Virtual Hill Climb

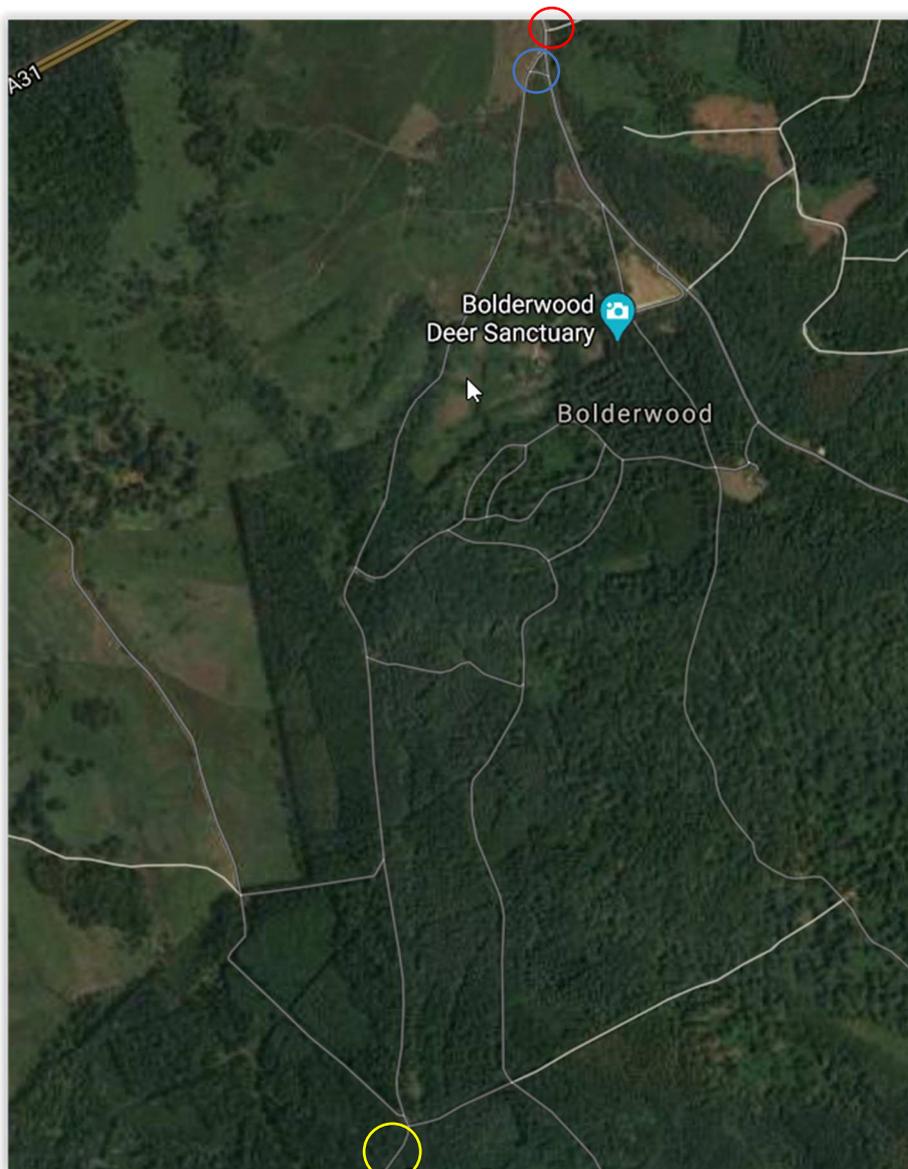

Event 3 – Bolderwood Hill Climb – Approx. 2.7km – 80m of climb

Welcome to the next event in the series of the virtual hill climbs.

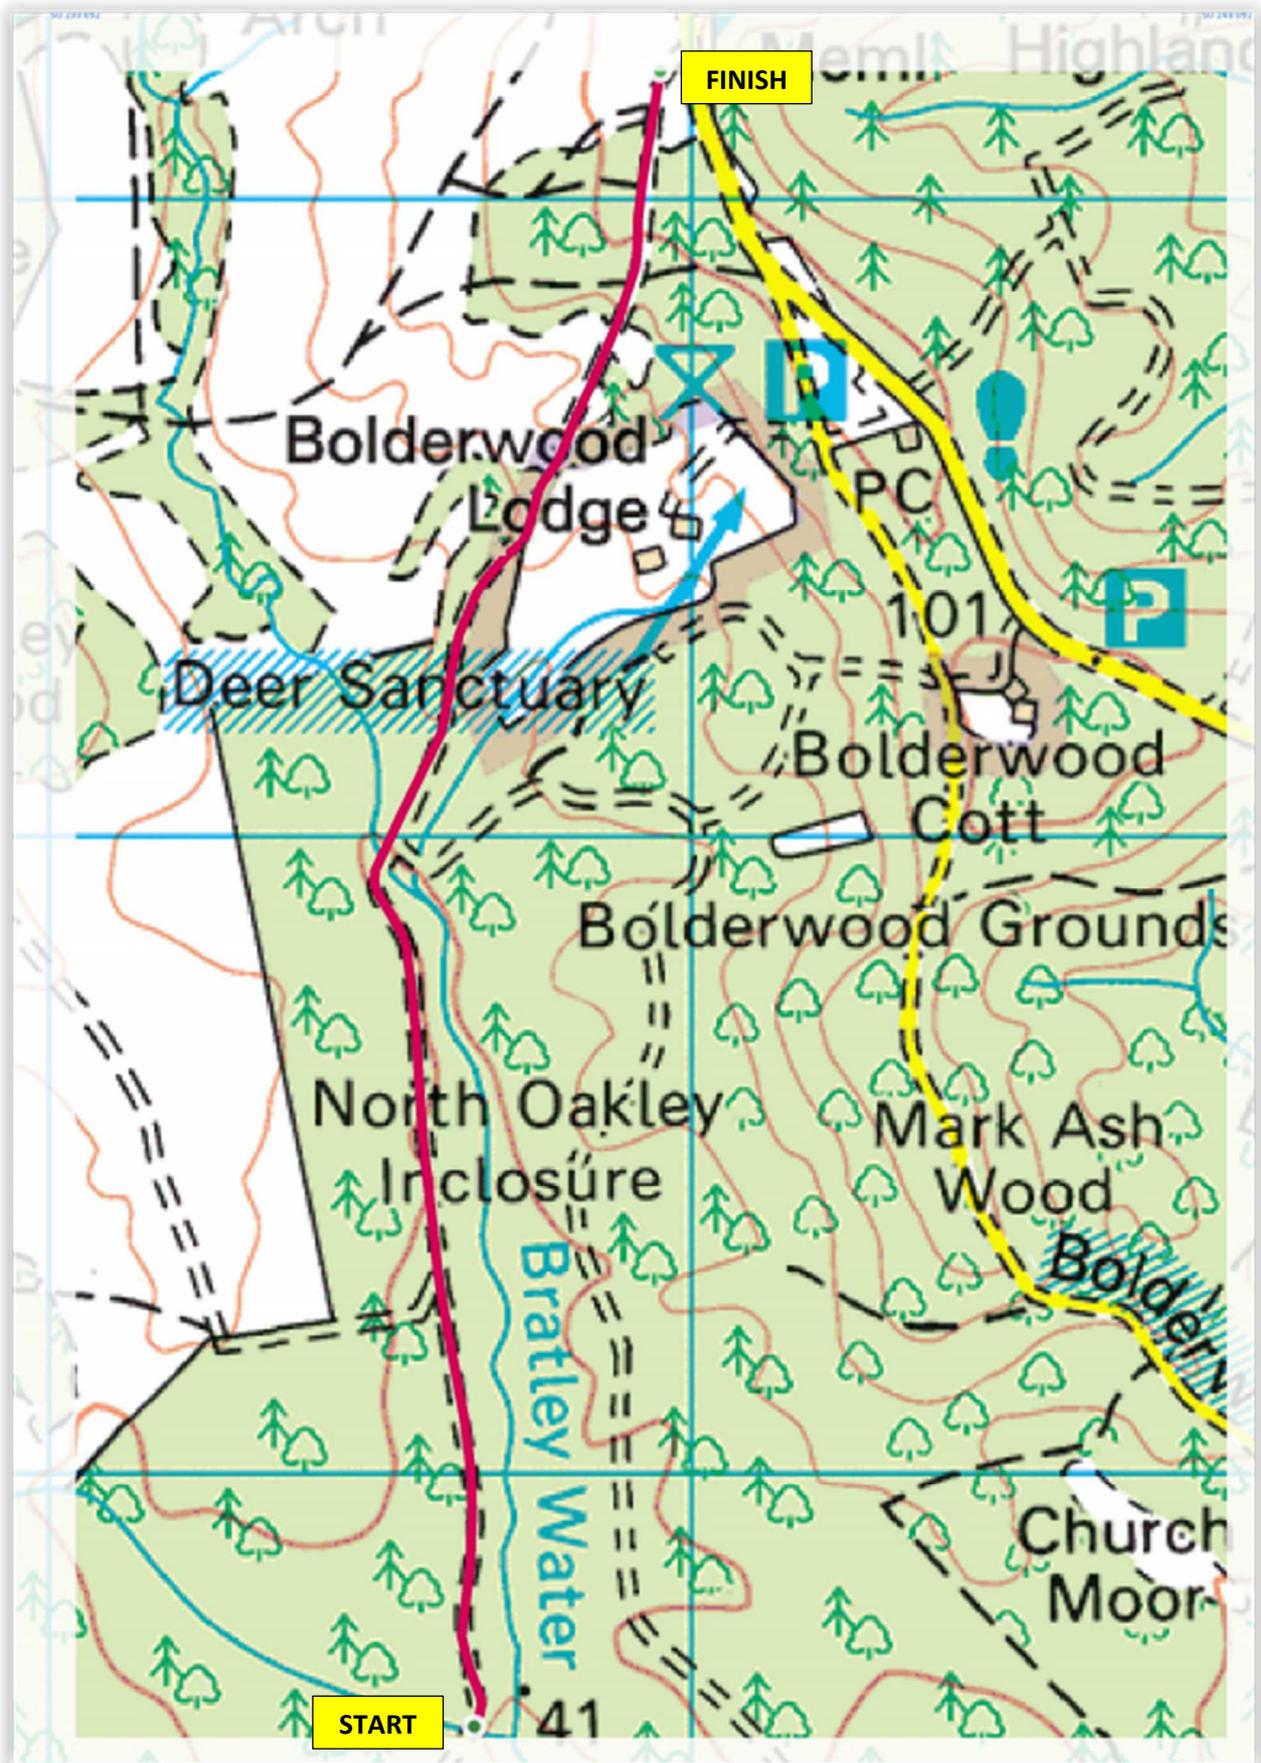

The start point for this challenge is at a bridge on the track down from the Canadian War Memorial car park, shown in yellow on the map below. Getting there is straight forward as it is on the main cycle route, just follow the instruction below in opposite. It will give you a good downhill warmup before working your way back up.

For this event you can park at Canadian War Memorial (red) or there is also the start of the gravel track to the south of this where the hill climb route starts (blue). Please remember not to block access to any gates.

It can be busy around this area during the weekends when the weather is good.

OS map of the route

1

This is the start point of the hill climb, this is the view you will see when approaching it. The red line is the start line on the bridge, and you will be heading back in the direction you came from

2

Follow the track back up the hill.

3

Carry on straight at this point. Cycle route marker 108 will be on your right

4

Carry on up the main gravel track. The post on the left will have a red arrow on it.

5

You will be approaching a concrete bridge. It is not a ford so should not flood. Water levels were fairly high when taking this photo so you won't need to worry about getting wet feet.

6

Cross over the bridge and head straight up the hill to the left. You will pass cycle route marker 107

7

Keep going on the gravel track and you will get to a gate. With cycle route marker 106 before it. The ground on the other side of the gate can be quite muddy so take care if you are using it.

8

Stick to the main path now all the way to the finish line

9

When you reach the gate or cross either side of it you have finished. Remember to stop your watch. Recover and enjoy the views and when you get home remember to send your times to Dot (females) and Neil Vincent (males).
